Insanity, Death or Health?

No. 287 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo., March 29, 1905.

I was a victim of sleeplessness and extreme nervousness for eighteen months, unable to get a proper night's rest and feeling tired and worn out continually. I was easily irritated and hysterical at the slightest provocation, but Wine of Cardui gave me great relief. Within a week after I began using it I had my first real good night's rest that I had had for months. My appetite was soon restored, my general system toned up and nervousness became a thing of the past.

I am so pleased to acknowledge the great curative merit of your health giving medicine and gladly endorse it.

Harriet O. Best
CHAPMAN, LADIES OF HONOR, No. 97.

WINE OF CARDUI

We want to call your attention to the complete and immediate relief Mrs. Best secured by taking Wine of Cardui. Within a week after she began taking Wine of Cardui, Mrs. Best had her first good night's rest for eighteen months. Her restlessness was caused by nervousness and Wine of Cardui, as the best menstrual regulator, has no superior in the world as a medicine to soothe a woman's nerves. Nervousness and hysteria are warnings of the approach of insanity and if relief is not secured the end can only be the asylum or the grave. With such an outlook as this before her, no suffering woman can reasonably refuse to give Wine of Cardui a trial. It brings a cure that thousands of women have sought for in vain. Will you secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui today and start treatment?

All druggists sell $1.00 bottles Wine of Cardui.

WOMAN CAME FIRST.

Esquimo Tradition as to the Origin of the Human Family.

The arctic Eskimos have their tradition of the origin of man, much the same as the Caucasian, and their tales of the prowess in battle, their sagas relating the past glories of what is now an almost extinct race are as thrilling as some of those that tell of the wondrous deeds of Odin and Thor or of those Grecian ancients whose deeds are yet preserved in prose and poetry.

According to Eskimo tradition, the first man was made from the dust of the earth, but from a piece of chewing gum, for he is known that the Indian is the original gum chewer as well as tobacco smoker. But woman was first. The first woman was lying one day on her couch of furs chewing gum. Growing weary, she took it from her mouth and fashioned it into the form of a man. Tired then, she fell asleep, to find upon her awakening that the breath of life had been breathed into the figure of gum of which she had been the architect, and, lo, man was there! And so the world began to be peopled.

It is related as a fact that high upon a mountain to the north and east of Point Hope are the skeletons of these eskimoes, or bonts, in good condition. They have been well preserved during 20,000 years or more by climatic conditions and may have been the original Noah's ark. They at one time in all probability rested upon the beach—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Secret Drinking Device.
The sanitarium was for women only—women dispensation—a luxurious place. The rate was $125 a week.

"This," said the superintendent, "is our museum. Odd, grotesque, eh?" The museum was a collection of skeletons of those who had been taken from female dispensation. There was a carriage clock with a false back that would hold a half pint of whisky; there was a muff with a round disk of India rubber in its hollow inside; a mouthpiece like that on a baby's bottle was hidden under a rosette. The owner of the muff would press it to her face, a very natural and common movement, and at the same time take a stiff drink. There were a dozen sorts of bonbons, candies of all shapes and hues, each containing two or three fingers of brandy. A fan—it would not open—had room for a half pint in it. A number of purses were nothing but whisky flasks covered with beadwork or leather or silver or gold. There was even a prayer book with a flask inside.—New York Press.

Should Not Cane Parrots.
"Nature never intended that parrots should be confined in cages," said a bird fancier. "They get gouty, feet become irritable, are liable to fits and convulsions, lose their feathers and pick themselves till they are a mass of mutilated deformity. Confinement and improper diet are the causes of all this. If a parrot gets an irritation of the skin and draws blood while picking himself he will keep on till he is a horrible spectacle. Once tasted, a thirst for blood has been created and will never cease."

"I made a trip to Guinea once, and when I saw the happiness of the birds in a state of freedom I declare my conscience smote me. I saw thousands of them, from the lovely little grass parakeet to the king parrot, and nothing can exceed their grace and delightful expression in the open country."—Milwaukee Free Press.

Bears One Crop and Dies.
The sago palm tree bears but one crop of fruit. Its load of nuts is its first and final effort in the way of fruit bearing. The nuts become ripe and are strewn in thousands around the tree until the ground stands up by itself, empty and bare. The branches turn brown and drop one by one to the ground. Inside the trunk the work of decay is going on until what at one time was a mass of white sago and pith becomes nothing but a collection of rotten brown fibers. One day the trade wind blows more strongly than usual, and the leafless column of the trunk falls with a crash, destroying in its fall many of the young palms that are already springing from the nuts scattered some months before.

The Sibylline Books.
It is recorded of Targuin the Proud, seventh emperor of Rome, that an old woman came to him with nine books, which contained, she said, sacred oracles. She asked an enormous price for them, and when the emperor refused she flew into a rage, threw three of the books into the fire and still asked the same price for the three remaining. This so astonished the emperor that he bought the three at the price he had for the nine. These were the Sibylline books, and their contents were long looked upon by the Romans as divine oracles.

Ants as Diggers.
Ants are terrible fighters. They have very powerful jaws, considering the size of their bodies, and therefore their method is by biting. They will bite one another and hold on with a wonderful grip of the jaws, even after all of their legs have been bitten off by other ants. Sometimes six or eight ants will be clinging with a death hold to one another, making a peculiar spectacle, some with a leg gone and some with half the body gone. One singular fact is that the grip of an ant's jaw is retained even after the body has been bitten off and nothing but the head remains.

CONSTIPATION
Health is absolutely impossible if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla., writes, Feb. 12, 1902: "Having used Herbine I find it a fine medicine for constipation." 50c a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

CHARCOAL.

The Way That Used in Making Gunpowder is Produced.

Charcoal making for gunpowder is a much more complicated process than the ordinary field kiln manufacture. Only certain kinds of wood are used—usually the young shoots of elder and willow—and it is cut in the spring, so that the bark may be stripped off. It is then piled under airy, open sheds and allowed to remain several years until it is thoroughly dried. When the powder maker is ready for a new supply of charcoal the wood is cut into lengths of three feet and placed in tight iron retorts, under and around which a fire roars continually. The dampers and pipes are so arranged that the workmen have complete control of the heat. At the end of the retort a hole is left for the escape of the inflammable gases resulting from the charring process. A pipe catches them as they leave the retort and conveys them into the furnace, where they take the place of a good deal of fuel. When the dunes of the gas become a deep blue color the workmen know that the wood is sufficiently charred, and the retort is cooled down as quickly as possible. The charcoal is then left for a week or more before grinding, because if placed in the machine at once there is danger of spontaneous combustion. The best charcoal is jet black and fractures show velvety surfaces.

A Mystery About Blood.
There is something very mysterious about the color of human blood, or, rather, as to what causes its red color. The physiologists say that "the color of blood is due to the red corpuscles which are contained in the vein fluids," but this does not nearly explain the mystery. An accumulation of blood corpuscles is red, to be sure, but in small numbers they are yellow, while one or two examined separately are found to be of a very light straw color. Why a large aggregation of these tiny disks should convey the impression of red to our senses, while a few show a yellow and a single specimen of light straw color, is something we would like to see explained.—St. Louis Republic.
